

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present inventors conceived that a marker gene may be efficiently and easily removed by using the floral dip method to transiently express high levels of a site-specific recombinase gene. it is considered that the present methods can also be applied to methods for transposing a transposon that does not have a transposase from a transformed plant that comprises the transposon having no transposase.

N:\3240\7449\Patent Application.doc 08/30/05